G4S Response to Human Rights Law Centre Complaint

G4S Australia was only made aware of the Human Rights Law Centre's complaint at the same time that media became aware of it today.

We are still considering the details of the complaint. It would therefore be premature to address them specifically.

However, G4S is confident it has complied with all of its human rights and legal obligations.

It should be noted that the Human Rights Law Centre's complaints refer largely to the policy of offshore detention and to matters over which G4S had no direct control.

For a fuller explanation of G4S's position on these matters, media and other concerned parties are referred to our submission to the Australian Senate Inquiry.

G4S has fully cooperated with all Australian and Papua New Guinean government investigations into the Manus Island riots, and with the Australian Senate Inquiry.

Documents provided to the Senate Inquiry can be viewed at:
